

The Lower Potomac River Water Trail Map Set

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Virginia Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) are proud to announce the availability of a new water trail map set depicting the Lower Potomac River. The six-map set highlights access points along the southern reaches of the river from Washington D.C. to the Chesapeake Bay in both Maryland and Virginia. Information on each access point, including the availability of restrooms, boating facilities, historical interest, overnight accommodations, camping and food service are included on each map. The water trail maps also include GPS (Global Positioning System) information on access sites as well as boating safety tips and emergency phone numbers.

This is a guide that every boater, kayaker and canoeist will want to keep on hand as it will become an invaluable part of any trip along the southern Potomac.
